

Many highlandroads are open

Written by Ulf Hoffmann

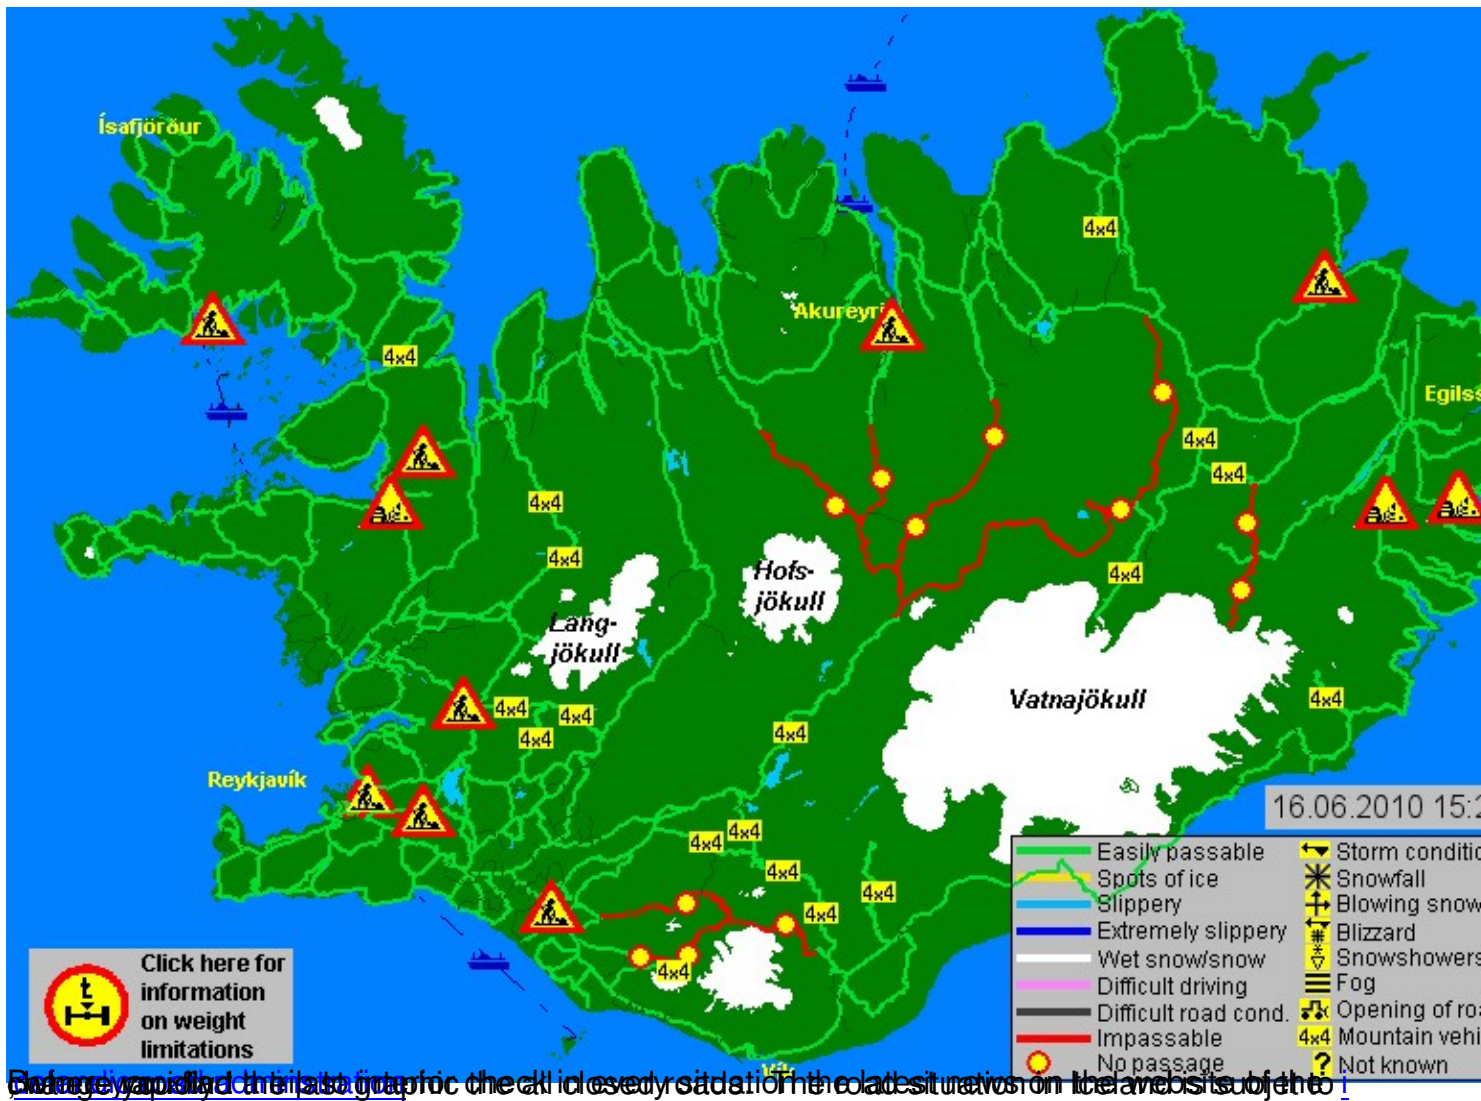

Good news from the icelandic interior: only a few highlandroads are still closed to traffic. It is not possible to travers in the northern part of the sprenigsandur-routes, around Askja and on the jeeptracks north of Mýrdalsjökull.

A transition of the sprenigisandur-route is not yet possible, but the second north-south-route Kjölur is nowadays open. In East-Iceland you get today by bicycle to the Kverkfjöll. In South-Iceland the road to Þórsmörk - which you was in parts disappear due to vulcanic eruption - is reconstructed and open.
